General Details

Introduction

A Census of Population was taken on the night of Sunday, 21 April 1991, in accordance with the Statistics (Census of Population) Order 1991 (S I No 62 of 1991)¹. A copy of the census questionnaire including the explanatory notes which accompanied it is reproduced in Appendix 1, Volume 1 of the detailed census report

This fifth volume of the detailed report contains classifications of the population by religious denomination. The territorial divisions of the country distinguished in this report are defined in Appendices 3-8 of Volume 1.

Subsequent census volumes will analyse the population by such characteristics as occupation, education, housing, etc.

Coverage

The census figures relate to the de facto population i.e. the population recorded for each area represents the total of all persons present within its boundaries on the night of Sunday, 21 April 1991, together with all persons who arrived in that area on the morning of Monday, 22 April 1991, not having been enumerated elsewhere. Persons on board ships in port are included with the population of adjacent areas. The figures, therefore, include visitors present on census night as well as those in residence, while usual residents temporarily absent from the area are excluded.

The date of the census was chosen to coincide with a period when passenger movements were at a minimum and, consequently, the figures closely approximate to those for the normally resident population. Members of the Defence Forces who on census night were serving abroad with the United Nations were excluded from the enumeration.

Conduct of the Census

The census enumeration was carried out by a specially recruited temporary field force consisting of 334 full-time supervisors and some 3,200 part-time enumerators. The census questionnaires were distributed during the three weeks immediately preceding the census night and the collection of the completed questionnaires commenced the following day. The enumerators examined the questionnaires at the time of collection to ensure that they were correctly completed, and, where necessary, they assisted householders in their completion.

Production of Results

Each enumerator first prepared and returned to the Central Statistics Office a summary of the population in his/her enumeration area. These summaries formed the basis for the preliminary 1991 population results issued in three census publications within months of the census date². The completed questionnaires for the individual households were subsequently transmitted to the Central Statistics Office for processing.

The population summaries, dwelling listings and enumeration maps for individual enumeration areas were checked for consistency in county order and used to determine the boundaries of census towns and suburbs/environs of towns with legal boundaries. The first stage clerical scrutiny and computer processing of the entries for date of birth, marital status and relationship to head of household (questions 1-6) on the census questionnaire proceeded concurrently in the same county order. These two operations combined allowed the publication of the first set of final census results in a series of Local Population Reports which were issued on a county-by-county basis immediately results became available (see Appendix). A summary report for the State was issued in April 1993.

The derived first phase computer file forms the basis for three volumes of the detailed census report covering Areas, Ages and Marital Status, and Household Composition and Family Units. The computer processing of the remaining information on the census questionnaires enabled the publication of a second series of Local Population Reports covering place of birth, religion, Irish speakers, usual residence, car usage and household characteristics.

A complete list of the reports on the 1991 Census published to date is given in the Appendix.

Classification by Religious Denomination

The formulation of the question on religious denomination was as follows

RELIGION State the particular denomination If none write "None"
--

No further notes or instructions were given. The census enumerators were instructed not to insist on the completion of this section of the form in cases where householders were reluctant to give the required information. This was similar to the instruction given at the 1981 Census of Population, the most recent previous census at which a question on Religion was included on the census schedule.

The classification of religious denominations introduced for the 1991 Census is more detailed than for previous censuses in which the question on Religion was asked. The full breakdown is given in Table 4.

The 1991 classification separately distinguishes persons described generally as "Protestants", without a particular denomination being indicated. However, in order to facilitate comparison with the results of previous censuses, Protestants have been included in the "Church of Ireland" category. This category also covers persons whose denominations were given as Church of Ireland, Church of England, Anglican, Episcopalian and Catholic Church of Ireland.

The category "Presbyterian" covers persons whose denominations were given as Free Presbyterian, Reformed Presbyterian and Church of Scotland. The category "Methodist" includes Wesleyan. Persons whose denominations were described as "Lapsed or non-practising Catholics" are shown separately in Table 4. The relatively small number of such persons in 1981 was included in the "Roman Catholic" category. Persons described as having no religion are shown accordingly, while those for whom no information was recorded are shown as "Not stated".

Total	3,443,405	3,525,719	2 4

A total of 3,228,327 persons were returned as Catholics in the 1991 Census, an increase of 23,851 or 0.7 per cent on the corresponding 1981 figure. The number of persons returned under all other stated religions totalled 147,747 in 1991, a rise of 19,366 or 15.1 per cent on the 1981 figure. However, this category comprised two distinct components. The combined number of adherents to the Church of Ireland, Presbyterian, Methodist and Jewish denominations fell by 8,534 or 7.3 per cent between 1981 and 1991. "Other stated religions", on the other hand, increased by 27,900 or 257.3 per cent over the same period.

The number of persons who indicated "No religion" increased by over two thirds between both censuses while the number of "Not stated" increased by slightly more than a sixth. In total, these two categories combined accounted for almost 150,000 of the total population in 1991 compared to 110,000 in 1981.

The extent of the "Not stated" category is an important factor in comparing the population classified by denomination. The growth in this category from 2.1 per cent of the population in 1981 to 2.4 per cent in 1991 may have affected the trend in individual denominations to a greater or lesser extent. This qualification should be borne in mind in interpreting comparisons between the 1981 and 1991 figures for individual denominations.

Regional Variations

Table B below shows the percentage change which took place between 1981 and 1991 in each County at the overall level and for major groupings of denominations. The categories shown are Catholics, "Other traditional religions" comprising Church of Ireland (including Protestants), Presbyterians, Methodists and Jews, "Other stated religions" and those for whom no religion was indicated or no information provided. Most of the declines in the number of Catholics between 1981 and 1991 were associated with overall population declines. The exceptions were Offaly, Westmeath and Limerick where modest falls in the number of Catholics occurred against a background of minor overall population increases. The number of adherents to the "Other traditional religions" decreased in all but seven counties between 1981 and 1991. These counties were Kildare, Kilkenny, Wexford, Wicklow, Clare, Kerry and Galway.

The number of adherents to "Other stated religions" more than doubled in all counties between both censuses. There were also increases in all counties in the number of persons classified as "No religion or religion not stated"; the lowest being Louth (+3.0 per cent) and the highest being Sligo (+112.1 per cent).

The changes in the age structure of the Catholic population closely follow the changes in the age structure of the population as a whole. This is to be expected since 91.6 per cent of the population were returned as Catholic. The decline in the annual number of births between 1981 and 1991 which was largely responsible for the fall of about one tenth in the number of children aged under 15 was also reflected in the 11 per cent decline in the number of Catholics in this age group. Conversely, the ageing process which added 28.9 per cent to the 35-44 year age group also caused the number of Catholics in this age group to increase by just over a quarter in the period 1981-1991.

The decline in the number of persons classified to the "Other traditional religions" occurred in all age groups apart from the 35-44 and 45-54 year age groups. In the latter two age groups the impact of demographic ageing outweighed the changes taking place in religious adherence. The 35-44 and 45-54 year age groups also accounted for the highest percentage changes between 1981 and 1991 in the number of persons with "No religion".

Table D shows the number of persons in each age group as a percentage of the total population of each religious denomination in 1981 and 1991.

Given that Catholics account for over 90 per cent of the population their age structure is similar to that of the overall population. Over 44 per cent of the Catholic population was under 25 years in 1991. This compared with about a third for the "Other traditional religions" and nearly 40 per cent for "Other stated religions". The proportion of persons aged 55 years and over varied from 29.1 per cent for the "Other traditional religions" to 19.3 per cent for Catholics and less than 10 per cent for "Other stated religions".

More than four in five of persons with "No religion" were aged less than 45 years in 1991.
