CENSUS OF POPULATION, 1971

EXPLANATORY NOTES

This Volume of the Report of the Census of Population, 1971 contains detailed tables relating to Fertility of Marriage.

The Census was taken on the night of 18 April, 1971 in accordance with the Statistics (Census of Population) Order, 1971 (S.I. No. 93 of 1971) made by the Taoiseach in pursuance of powers conferred on him by Sub-section (1) of Section 16 of the Statistics Act, 1926 and the Statistics Acts, 1926 and 1946 (Transfer of Ministerial Functions) Order, 1949 (S.I. No. 142 of 1949).

COVERAGE OF THE CENSUS

The Census figures relate to the de facto population, that is to say the population recorded for each area represents the total of all persons present within its boundaries on the night of Sunday, 18 April, 1971, together with all persons who arrived in that area on the morning of Monday, 19 April, 1971, not having been enumerated elsewhere. However, for the fertility analysis contained in this Volume, the numbers of families and children included relate to those returns which contained full replies to the relevant questions on the Census Form as described in the next paragraph.

FERTILITY QUESTIONS ASKED ON CENSUS FORM

The questions on the Census schedule from which the Statistics contained in the present Volume were derived were as follows:-

To be completed for each married woman only.-

Month and year of present marriage.

Number of children born alive to present marriage.

The fertility inquiry related to all married women in the State whether or not their husbands were in the household on the date of the Census, widows and single women were excluded. The information was collected in respect of existing marriages only. Hence, to enable valid analyses involving births, duration of marriage, etc., to be made, the question on the number of children born alive was designed to exclude children not born to the present marriage. Satisfactory information was provided in respect of 502,853 married women - some 96.1 percent of the total married women recorded in the Census.

The information on date of present marriage together with the date of birth of each married woman, (which was also asked for on the Census schedule) and the date of the Census made possible the calculation of (a) the duration of the marriage in completed years and (b) the age last birthday of the wife at the time of the marriage. Similarly, where the husband was enumerated in the same household as the wife, it was possible to determine the age last birthday of the husband at the time of the marriage. However, the validity of the data in respect of older women, especially those whose age at marriage was over 40 years or those whose duration of marriage was 40 years or more, is subject to some uncertainty.

CLASSIFICATION BY SOCIO-ECONOMIC GROUP

The entire population was classified according to "Socio-Economic Group". The socio-economic group of each gainfully occupied person was decided by his or her occupation or, in some cases, by a combination of occupation and employment status. Listed below are the eleven socio-economic groups plus a residual group which were used, the occupations assigned to each of the eleven groups being considered generally similar as regards the level of skill or educational attainment required. Persons not gainfully occupied were classified to the socio-economic group of the person on whom they were deemed to be dependant. Thus, if the head of a family was gainfully occupied, dependent members were assigned to his socio-economic group. If the head was not gainfully occupied, the non-gainfully occupied members were assigned to the socio-economic group of the principal earner in the family. If a household did not contain any gainfully occupied persons, the occupants were assigned to the residual group.

The actual socio-economic groups used in the Census are as follows -

- 0 - Farmers, farmers' relatives and farm managers
- 1 - Other agricultural occupations and fishermen
- 2 - Higher professional
- 3 - Lower professional
- 4 - Employers and managers
- 5 - Salaried employees
- 6 - Intermediate non-manual workers
- 7 - Other non-manual workers
- 8 - Skilled manual workers
- 9 - Semi-skilled manual workers
- X - Unskilled manual workers
- R - Unknown

A detailed list showing the allocation of the occupations to each socio-economic group is given in Appendix A.

A factor to be borne in mind in making comparisons with 1961 is the different method used in classifying some semi-skilled labourers according to occupation on this occasion, for example, Builders' labourers, previously separately distinguished, have been included in the occupation "Labourers and unskilled workers (n.e.s.)". This is necessary because of the difficulty of distinguishing in the Census returns a Builders' labourer, normally regarded as a semi-skilled worker, from a person who described himself as a labourer working for a builder. He would be regarded as an unskilled worker if the latter description could be accepted as the correct one. This change affects the socio-economic groups in that all such builders' labourers and their dependents are now assigned to the group "Unskilled manual workers" whereas formerly they were in the group "Semi-skilled manual workers". A similar situation arose in the case of other labourers who had previously been separately distinguished and classified as semi-skilled e.g. Fitter's labourer.

CLASSIFICATION BY RELIGION

The column on the Census schedule in which information on this topic was furnished was headed "Religion - state particular denomination" and no further notes or instructions were given. The Census Enumerators were instructed not to insist on the completion of this section of the form in cases where householders were reluctant to give the required information.

In Tables 10 and 10A of this Volume classifications are given in respect of the following religious denominations - Catholic, Church of Ireland, Other stated religion and others (i.e. no religion or no information supplied), while in Tables 6, 12 and 12A, the Church of Ireland is combined with the other stated religions.

CONTENT OF THE TABLES

The lay-out of the present Volume is broadly similar to that of the corresponding Volume of the 1961 Census but there have been a number of changes in the content. Except in the case of the most detailed and basic tables, Tables 1, 2, 3, and 7, the additional cross-classification by number of children is not now included as it was in 1961 for tables dealing with other variables.

Two tables which in 1961 dealt basically with Provinces only are not now included. Two extra tables have been included classifying families and children born by year of birth of wife and year of marriage.

Table 1 classifies families and children born by the number of children born per family for each Province and for Dublin County Borough and Dun Laoghaire Borough and the combined County Boroughs of Munster, while Table 1A shows these in terms of the distribution per 10,000 families or children. Table 2 classifies families by duration of marriage and by number of children born, while Table 2A shows the distribution per 10,000 families. Tables 3 and 3A are similar to 2 and 2A but deal with children born rather than families.

Families and children born are classified by duration of marriage and by age of wife at marriage in Table 4 with Table 4A showing the average number of children born per 100 families in each of the groups distinguished in Table 4. Tables 5 and 5A are similar to Tables 4 and 4A but age of husband at marriage is included instead of duration of marriage. Table 6 shows the number of families, children born and average number of children per 100 families in each duration of marriage group for religious denominations.

Table 7 provides the most detailed breakdown of families with a four-way classification by duration of marriage, age of wife at marriage, age of husband at marriage and number of children born. Table 7A shows the average number of children born per 100 families in each duration of marriage by age of wife at marriage by age of husband at marriage group, while Table 7B shows, for duration ten years and over, the percentage of child-less marriages in each of these groups.

Each of Tables 8 to 12 (inclusive) classifies families and children born by duration of marriage and age of wife at marriage and by a third variable. In Table 8 the variable is the type of district involved (e.g. Towns 5,000-10,000 population, Rural areas, etc.) and Table 9 deals with Provinces, Counties and County Boroughs. The third variable in Table 10 is religious denomination and in Table 11 socio-economic group, while Table 12 combines these aspects to show religious denominations within each socio-economic group. Tables 8A and 12A each provide the related ratios for average number of children born per 100 families.

Families and children born are classified in Table 13 by duration of marriage and present age group of wife, while Table 14 contains a detailed classification of these by present age of wife. Table 15 shows families and children born classified by year of marriage, while Tables 16 and 17 provide a classification by year of birth of wife and year of marriage.

COMMENTARY

FAMILY SIZE, 1961-71

The tables cover a total of 502,853 married women with a corresponding total of 1,733,715 children born alive. This gives an overall average of 345 children per 100 families as compared with the overall average figure of 353 for the corresponding 1961 analysis. However, the difference between averages derived in this way reflects not only changes in specific fertility levels but also changes in structure which affect average fertility levels, such as age of wife at marriage, duration of marriage, etc. Comparisons must therefore be made at a more detailed level. This is done in Table A which shows the average number of children born per 100 families in each duration of marriage group by age group of wife at marriage.

*Based on 10 families or less.

NOTE - Standardised rates for 1961 are shown in brackets. For a particular duration group the 1961 fertility rate in each age group was multiplied by the number of married women in the corresponding duration and age group in 1971, the products aggregated for all ages and divided by the number of married women in the duration group in 1971. For duration 0-4 years figures for separate single years of duration were used in deriving standardised rates. The standardised rates for the age groups were found in a similar manner.

In general, the average rates for 1971 are below the 1961 levels. For example, for every 100 marriages in the five years preceding the 1971 Census, where the bride was in the 20-24 year age group, the average number of children born was 108 compared with the corresponding 1961 rate of 117, for the 25-29 age-at-marriage group the drop was from 112 in 1961 to 104 in 1971.

Standardised rates for 1961 are also shown in brackets in Table A in the first column for all ages and in the final row for all durations of marriage. These standardised rates show what the corresponding average 1961 rates would have been if the distribution by age of wife at marriage and duration of marriage of married women in 1961 had been the same as in 1971 and thus removes the effect of any changes in this distribution on comparisons between 1961 and 1971.

When the 1961 and 1971 rates for different duration of marriage groups are compared using the standardised rates, decreases in fertility are shown in all except the 20-24 years duration group where there was an increase from 418 to 424. The largest decreases were in the marriages of longest duration with the duration groups 35-39, 40-44 and 45 years and over showing falls of 6.1 percent, 7.7 percent and 6.6 percent respectively. The standardised 1961 rates were higher than the actual 1961 rates for almost every duration group which shows that a comparison by duration of the actual rates understates the 1961-71 changes.

When different age of wife at marriage groups are considered, there were reductions in fertility in the younger groups, those whose age at marriage was under 30 years, while for those married at over this age, fertility showed almost no change. The reductions in the under 20, 20-24 and 25-29 groups were 2.7 percent, 4.3 percent and 1.7 percent respectively. In the case of the groups with age at marriage under 25 the standardised 1961 rates are lower than the actual 1961 rates. The latter rates thus overstate the difference when compared with 1971.

The difference between the actual 1961 rates and those standardised using the 1971 structure are explained by the fact that this (1971) structure reflects rising marriage rates and younger marriage ages.

A comparison between the results of the two Censuses may be made in another way as set out in Table B which shows the distribution in 1961 and 1971 of families in the various duration of marriage groups according to the number of children born. The distribution by number of children in 1961 has also been standardised using the 1971 structure by age of wife at marriage within each duration of marriage group. It thus shows what the distribution by number of children would have been in 1961 if the latter structure had been the same in 1961 as in 1971. Although, as mentioned above, for each duration group there was a decline in average level of fertility, Table B shows there was also a slight decline, in each of the duration of marriage groups from 5-34 years, in the percentage of child-less marriages. However, in the 0-4 years duration of marriage group child-less families formed 34.1 percent of the total in 1971 as compared with 33.6 per cent ten years earlier. In this group the percentage of families with three or more children decreased from 9.0 percent in 1961 to 7.2 percent in 1971.

NOTE - For a particular duration group, the 1961 distribution by number of children born for each age of wife at marriage group was multiplied by the number of wives in this age group and duration of marriage group in 1971. The resultant products were summed and the standardised 1961 distribution thus obtained. For duration 0-4 years figures for separate single years of duration were used in deriving a standardised distribution.

In the 5-9 years duration of marriage group, the proportion of child-less families decreased from 11.3 percent in 1961 to 10.1 percent in 1971. A more striking feature of this duration group is that families with two or three children formed 54.0 percent of the total in 1971 as compared with 46.9 percent ten years earlier, whereas the percentage of families with four or more children decreased from 32.1 percent in 1961 to 26.4 percent in 1971.

In marriages of duration 15 to 24 years there was an increase in the percentage of families having from 4 to 6 children from 35.6 percent in 1961 to 37.4 percent in 1971 with the percentage of families of other sizes staying the same or showing comparable small decreases.

There was a slight reduction over the ten years period in the percentage of all families having ten or more children, from 3.9 percent in 1961 to 3.5 percent in 1971. Over the same period the percentage of families with 1-4 children rose from 54.1 percent to 56.3 percent with the percentage of child-less families falling from 14.5 percent to 14.1 percent.

AGE OF HUSBAND

In the detailed tables the average number of children born per 100 families is shown in Table 7A for each duration of marriage class sub-divided not only by age of wife at marriage but also by age of husband at marriage. These results have already been given in summarised form in Table A above which shows the strong relationship between age of wife at marriage and the average fertility rate. This must be allowed for in assessing the influence of the age of husband at marriage on fertility which is the objective of Table C which shows the average number of children born per 100 families in each age of husband at marriage group for the various duration of marriage categories. These rates have been standardised for age of wife at marriage within a duration class thus removing the effect of the age of wife at marriage. Thus the rates shown for the various age of husband at marriage groups for a given duration would be those actually existing if the age pattern of wives had been identical for each age of husband at marriage group in that duration.

NOTE - For a particular duration and age of husband group, the standardised rate was obtained by multiplying the rate for each age of wife at marriage group by the number of wives in this age group and duration of marriage group in the State, summing the resultant products and dividing by the total number of wives in the duration group in the State.

†For the rate for all durations for a particular age of husband at marriage group, the rate for each age of wife at marriage and duration of marriage group was multiplied by the number of wives in the age of wife at marriage and duration of marriage group in the State, the resultant products summed and divided by the total number of wives in the State.

The results show that the age of husband at marriage has little effect on fertility for husbands whose age at marriage was under 40 except for marriages of longer duration where fertility was somewhat higher for those married before the age of 25. The age groups 40-44 and 45-49 years show declines of 4.3 percent and 5.4 percent respectively over the rates for the preceding age groups with the 50-54 years and 55 years and over age groups showing more pronounced declines of 12.4 percent and 9.8 percent respectively.

SOCIO-ECONOMIC GROUPS

Standardised fertility rates are shown in Table D for each socio-economic group. The rates are shown for each duration of marriage group and are again standardised for age of wife at marriage within each duration class. The socio-economic groups are, therefore, compared as if the structure by age of wife at marriage within each duration of marriage group had been identical for each socio-economic group.

[†] See footnote, Table C.

The fertility rates for socio-economic groups for all durations of marriage varied from a maximum of 387 in the case of the Farmers, farmers' relatives and farm managers group to 299 for the Higher professional group (excluding the Unknown socio-economic group where the rate was 288). Other groups with rates in excess of 360 (compared with the rate of 345 for all groups) were Unskilled manual workers and Other agricultural occupations and fishermen. Groups with rates of less than 320 were Employers and managers, Salaried employees and Intermediate non-manual workers.

RELIGION

Table E shows standardised fertility rates for different religious denominations. These are shown, as in Table D, for each duration of marriage group.

* Includes "no religion" and no information supplied.

The fertility rates for Catholics are, of course, very close to those for all religions in view of the fact that 93 percent of married women included in this analysis were Catholics. In fact, in each duration of marriage group, the rates for Catholics were slightly above those for the total population, being 352 as compared with 345 in the case of marriages of all durations. The corresponding figures for members of the Church of Ireland and for other specified religions were 229 and 233, respectively. There are, however, variations in the differences between religions for different duration of marriage groups. For the duration groups 0-4 years and 5-9 years, the average number of children born per 100 families is approximately 25 percent higher for Catholics than it is for other religions but this average is from one-half to three-quarters larger for durations of twenty years or more.

COUNTIES AND COUNTY BOROUGHES

Tables A - E have shown the influence on the fertility rates of various factors such as age of wife at marriage, duration of marriage, age of husband at marriage, socio-economic group and religion. The combinations of these factors explain, to a large extent, the different fertility rates for Counties which are given in Table F. These differences remain even when standardised for age of wife at marriage and duration of marriage as can be seen from this table. The Counties have been ranked in this table in decreasing order of standardised fertility rate for all durations of marriage. Also shown are the rates for marriages of duration 25-29 years, when most families would have been completed.

TABLE F:- AVERAGE NUMBER OF CHILDREN BORN PER 100 FAMILIES IN EACH COUNTY AND COUNTY BOROUGH FOR ALL DURATIONS OF MARRIAGE AND DURATION 25-29 YEARS, STANDARDISED† FOR AGE OF WIFE AT MARRIAGE AND LISTED IN DECREASING ORDER OF AVERAGE NUMBER OF CHILDREN FOR ALL DURATIONS.

† See footnote, Table C.

The highest standardised rate for all durations was 387 in Galway with Mayo being next highest with 380. These rates compare with the national rate of 345. Other counties with rates in excess of 370 were Laoighis, Donegal, Carlow, Kilkenny and Offaly. The only rate below 300 was in Dun Laoghaire Borough where it was 281 with the next lowest being 318 and 303 in Dublin County Borough and the remainder of County Dublin, respectively. Other rates below 330 were in Wicklow and the County Boroughs of Cork and Waterford. When the rates for marriages of 25-29 years duration are considered, the order is very similar to that for all durations.
