The four further bulletins produced (38 to 41) contain similar though more detailed information for the State as a whole together with classifications involving religion, socio-economic groups, knowledge of Irish, elderly persons living alone, type and size of households, age of housing units, the number of motor cars available to household members, fertility of marriage, birthplace, migration, scientific and technological qualifications, level of education and means of transport and distance travelled to work or school.

Tabulations containing similar information to that shown in the County Bulletins have been prepared for each District Electoral Division and Ward and for each town of 1 000 population and over. These tabulations are in the form of computer print-outs and will be supplied to interested persons at a charge sufficient to cover the cost of photo-copying.

CENSUS OF POPULATION, 1971

EXPLANATORY NOTES

This Volume of the Report of the Census of Population 1971 contains detailed classifications by age, conjugal condition, occupation and industry of the population aged 14 years and over.

The Census was taken on the night of 18 April 1971 in accordance with the Statistics (Census of Population) Order 1971 (S.I. No. 93 of 1971) made by the Taoiseach in pursuance of powers conferred on him by Sub-section (1) of Section 16 of the Statistics Act, 1926 and the Statistics Acts 1926 and 1946 (Transfer of Ministerial Functions) Order, 1949 (S.I. No. 142 of 1949).

INFORMATION COLLECTED

The following particulars were collected in respect of each individual — (i) Name, (ii) sex, (iii) relationship to head of household, (iv) usual residence, (v) usual residence one year prior to Census date, (vi) place of birth, (vii) date of birth, (viii) conjugal condition, (ix) date of marriage and number of children (for married women only), (x) religion, (xi) knowledge of Irish (for persons 3 years of age and over), (xii) method of transport and distance travelled to work or school and for persons aged 14 years or over — (xiii) principal occupation, (xiv) employment status, (xv) name of employer and nature of employer's business, (xvi) age at which full-time education ended and number of years' attendance at school or college etc. (for persons who had ceased their full-time education), (xvii) scientific or technological qualifications held and fields of science concerned. In addition the following information was collected in respect of each private household — (i) total area and rateable valuation of agricultural holdings held by members of the household, (ii) nature of occupancy of dwelling (rented, owner-occupied etc.), (iii) rent of dwelling, (iv) year house was built, (v) rooms occupied, (vi) type of water supply, (vii) availability of bath or shower, (viii) type of sanitary facility, (ix) electricity supply and (x) motor vehicles used by household.

COVERAGE OF THE CENSUS

The Census figures relate to the de facto population, that is to say the population recorded for each area represents the total of all persons present within its boundaries on the night of Sunday, 18 April 1971, together with all persons who arrived in that area on the morning of Monday, 19 April 1971, not having been enumerated elsewhere. Persons on board ships in port are included with the population of adjacent areas. The figures, therefore, include visitors present on Census night as well as residents while Irish persons temporarily absent from the State are excluded. The date of the Census was, however, chosen to coincide with a period when passenger movements were at a minimum and consequently the figures closely approximate to those for the normally resident population. Members of the Defence Forces who on Census date were serving abroad with the United Nations were, of course, excluded from the enumeration.

CLASSIFICATION BY OCCUPATION

All persons aged 14 years and over, including those who are out of work and those who are temporarily confined to hospitals, are classified to their usual principal occupation.

Occupations are divided into two broad categories: gainful and non-gainful, a gainful occupation being one in which the person is actively engaged and from which the livelihood is usually obtained. Persons in certain occupations who do not receive a fixed wage or salary are, however, also classified as gainfully occupied. The principal group of persons in this category being those assisting relatives in farm work. Persons engaged in home duties, persons at school, students, persons not yet at work and retired persons comprise the majority of the not gainfully occupied group. The occupation in the case of a gainfully occupied person is determined by the kind of work performed in earning a living irrespective of the place in which and the purpose for which, it is performed. Classification of the population by occupation thus brings together the numbers of persons engaged in the same type of work regardless of the purpose for which such work is undertaken.

The most detailed occupation classification used in the 1971 Census of Population is that shown in Appendix A. This occupation list is used in Table 2A of the present Volume, showing males classified by age, conjugal condition and occupation. In the case of Table 2B, however, which contains similar particulars for females, occupations containing very small numbers have been grouped together. The composition of the occupation groups used in Tables 3A and 3B is outlined in Appendices A and B.

CLASSIFICATION BY INDUSTRY

The industry in which a person is engaged is determined (whatever may be his occupation) by reference to the business or branch of economic activity in which or for the purpose of which his occupation is followed. Thus, while the occupational classification is concerned only with work performed by the individual regardless of its ultimate purpose or end product, the industrial classification is concerned only with the ultimate purpose or end product regardless of the precise nature of the work performed. A single manufacturing concern or commercial undertaking may employ persons of many different occupations for the purpose of making a particular product or giving a particular service (for example a brewery usually employs skilled craftsmen such as carpenters electricians etc.) Conversely there are many cases in which particular occupations are largely confined to a single industry. For example, the majority of persons having agricultural occupations are in the industry of Agriculture and most miners are in the Mining industry. It will be noted that the term 'industry' as used for Census of Population purposes is not confined to Manufacturing industry but is regarded as being synonymous with the term "branch of economic activity". The industrial groups used in Tables 11A, 11B, 13A and 13B are outlined in Appendix D.

CLASSIFICATION BY EMPLOYMENT STATUS

Each gainfully occupied person was classified by 'Employment Status' to one of the following groups —

- Employer and own account worker
- Assisting relative
- Employee
- Out of work

CLASSIFICATION BY SOCIO-ECONOMIC GROUP

The entire population was classified according to 'Socio-economic group'. The socio-economic group of each gainfully occupied person was decided by his or her occupation or in some cases by a combination of occupation and employment status. Listed below are the eleven socio-economic groups plus a residual group which were used, the occupations assigned to each of the eleven groups being considered generally similar as regards the level of skill or educational attainment required. Persons not gainfully occupied were classified to the socio-economic groups of the persons on whom they were deemed to be dependent. Thus, if the head of a family was gainfully occupied, dependent members were assigned to his socio-economic group. If the head was not gainfully occupied, the non-gainfully occupied members were assigned to the socio-economic group of the principal earner in the family. If a household did not contain any gainfully occupied persons, the occupants were assigned to the residual group.

While in previous Censuses information was sought from retired persons regarding their former occupation, thus making it possible to classify them directly according to socio-economic groups, on this occasion such information was not sought and, where the former occupation was not stated, these persons were assigned to the residual group except as explained above where they could be assigned to the socio-economic group of the principal earner in the family unit. As the number of retired persons involved is quite substantial, this significantly affects comparability with the corresponding data on socio-economic groups from the 1966 Census. A further factor to be borne in mind in regard to this latter aspect is the different method used in classifying some semi-skilled labourers according to occupation on this occasion. For example, Builders' labourers previously separately distinguished, have been included in the occupation "Labourers and unskilled workers (n e s)". This is necessary because of the difficulty of distinguishing in the Census returns a Builders' labourer normally regarded as a semi-skilled worker from a person who described himself as a labourer working for a builder. He would be regarded as an unskilled worker if the latter description could be accepted as the correct one. This change affects the socio-economic groups in that all such builders' labourers and their dependents are now assigned to the group "Unskilled manual workers" whereas formerly they were in the group "Semi-skilled manual workers". A similar situation arises in the case of other labourers who had previously been separately distinguished and classified as semi-skilled, e.g. Fitter's labourer.

The actual socio-economic groups used in the Census are as follows —

- i — Farmers, farmers' relatives and farm managers
- ii — Other agricultural occupations and fishermen
- iii — Higher professional
- iv — Lower professional
- v — Employers and managers
- vi — Salaried employees
- vii — Intermediate non-manual workers
- viii — Other non-manual workers
- ix — Skilled manual workers
- x — Semi-skilled manual workers
- xi — Unskilled manual workers
- xii — Unknown

A detailed list showing the allocation of occupations to each socio-economic group is given in Appendix C.

More specific directions as to how these questions should be answered were given in a leaflet which accompanied the Census schedule In addition the enumerators were requested to examine the completed forms carefully so that vague and inadequate descriptions would be detected and corrected before the forms left the centres of enumeration Despite these precautions there were as at previous censuses, a number of cases where incomplete descriptions were given The procedure in such cases was to use information such as age and education as well as the employer's business to assign them to the most appropriate heading

CONTENT OF THE TABLES

In general, the content and layout of the present Volume is similar to that of the corresponding Volume of the 1966 Census with some reduction in the detail given in Tables 3 and 4. The classification of those in each occupation by single year of age in Tables 5A and 5B has been extended to include each year of age up to 24. Males and females at work are classified by industrial group and age group but not by individual industry and in the case of those out of work, the classifications in Tables 12 and 13 by age group are for occupational groups and industrial group rather than for detailed occupations and industries.

Tables 1A and 1B show the classification of males and females in each occupational group according to age group and conjugal condition while Tables 2A and 2B give the same classification for males and females in each occupation. Tables 3A and 3B give the numbers in each occupational group in each Province, County and County Borough classified by age group. Farmers in each Province and County are classified in Table 4 according to conjugal condition and age group.

Tables 5A and 5B relate to the population aged 14-24 only. Males and females in this age group are shown by single year of age and by occupation. In Table 6 the total population in each socio-economic group is classified by age group and conjugal condition, distinguishing sex, gainfully occupied and not gainfully occupied for those aged 14 years and over while Table 7 gives the same information for those in the socio-economic group "Farmers, farmers' relatives and farm managers" and further subdivides them by the total rateable valuation of agricultural holdings held by persons usually resident in the household.

Males and females are classified by employment status and age group in Tables 8A and 9A while Tables 8B, 8C, 9B and 9C show the numbers in each age group as a percentage of the total in each employment status and the numbers in each employment status as a percentage of the total gainfully occupied in each age group. In Tables 10A and 10B, males and females in each employment status are classified by age group and conjugal condition.

Table 11A classifies males at work in each industrial group by age group while Table 11B provides a similar classification for females with a further subdivision by conjugal condition. Tables 12A, 12B, 13A and 13B are concerned with males and females out of work only and classify these by occupational group and age group in Tables 12A and 12B and by industrial group and age group in Tables 13A and 13B.

COMMENTARY

PARTICIPATION RATES IN EACH AGE GROUP

In the 1971 Census there were 2,105 321 persons aged 14 years and over. Just over one-half of these were gainfully occupied. The percentage of males and females in each age group who were gainfully occupied in 1971 with corresponding percentages for 1961 and 1966 is shown in Table I.

TOTAL	82.4	81.4	79.2	28.6	28.3	27.3

The overall participation rate for both males and females aged 14 years and over, that is the number gainfully occupied as a percentage of the total, continued to fall between 1966 and 1971. This fall was from 81.4 to 79.2 percent for males and from 28.3 to 27.3 percent for females. The decline was most pronounced in the younger (14-19 years) and older (65 and over) age groups. The participation rate in the former group fell from 53.8 to 43.2 percent for males and from 46.6 to 38.6 percent for females and reflects mainly the greater number of persons in this age group receiving full-time education. The fall in the participation rate in the older age groups is due to earlier retirement and also probably to the decline in the number of persons gainfully occupied in the agricultural sector where persons tend to continue at work longer than those in other sectors.

In the other age groups the percentage of males gainfully occupied showed only very minor changes between 1966 and 1971 while the percentage of females varied a little more. In order to emphasise the broad trends described here, data for the age groups 14-19, 20-64 and 65 and over have been shown separately at the bottom of the table. The participation rate for females, bearing in mind the changes caused by an increasing number of married women and also the greater participation rate for married women, is examined more closely in Table IV.

AGE DISTRIBUTION IN OCCUPATIONAL GROUPS

The following two tables, Table II and Table III, show the distribution by age group of gainfully occupied males and females in the various occupational groups.

The main variations in the age structure of the occupational groups again occur in the youngest and oldest age groups. The percentage of male Agricultural and forestry workers and fishermen aged 65 and over was 16.8 whereas no other group contained as many as 10 percent of its total labour force in this age group and most had less than 5 percent. Other groups in which older male workers were prominent were Commerce, insurance and finance workers and Service workers. In the case of the 14-19 age group, the percentage of the total in this group varied from 19.5 percent in the case of Engineering and related trades workers to 0.5 percent of Administrative, executive and managerial workers. Other groups where more than one-sixth of the total gainfully occupied males were under 20 years of age were Electrical and electronic workers, Textile and clothing workers and the Armed forces. Overall 8.6 percent of male workers were in this age group.

The different age structure of Agricultural workers was even more apparent in the case of females where one-third of this group were aged 65 and over. No other group contained as many as 10 percent of its total labour force in this age group with the next highest being Administrative executive and managerial workers (8.7 percent) and Commerce, insurance and finance workers (8.0 percent).

There were a number of occupational groups where the proportion of young female workers was very substantial. More than 40 percent of all female Leather and leather substitute workers and Textile and clothing workers were under 20 years of age as were more than one-third of Unskilled workers (n.e.s.). Other producers, makers and repairers and Storekeepers, packers and bottlers. There were only four groups where less than 10 percent of the total were in this age group. These were Agricultural workers, Forewomen and supervisors of manual workers, Administrative, executive and managerial workers and Professional and technical workers.

AGE AND CONJUGAL CONDITION OF GAINFULLY OCCUPIED FEMALES

The changing pattern of female participation in the labour force is analysed more closely in Table IV.

Although the total number of females in the labour force, 288,000, has remained at almost the same level since 1961, there have been considerable changes in the constituent aggregates which make up this total. While the total number of single women in the labour force fell by 11,750 between 1966 and 1971, this was offset by an increase of 13,380 in the number of gainfully occupied married women, the latter representing a rise of more than 50 percent. This has been caused both by a rise in the participation rate for married women further augmented by a rise in the actual number of married women. The reduction in the number of gainfully occupied single women is a reflection of the reduced participation rate in the younger age groups due mainly to increased numbers receiving full-time education and also of the smaller number of single women in the age group 25-64 years due to the higher marriage rate.

Table V shows the numbers and proportions of married females in different occupational groups

TOTAL GAINFULLY OCCUPIED (aged 14 years and over)	287,867	39,214	13.6

Of the total of 287,867 gainfully occupied females 39,214 were married i.e. nearly 14 percent. This is a substantial increase over the corresponding 1966 percentage which was 9 percent.

The largest number of married women was in the Professional and technical workers group (almost 11 000) forming over 20 percent of the total female labour force in that group. Other groups in which there were large numbers of married women were Service workers (7,200), Clerical workers (6,100) and Commerce, insurance and finance workers (5,400).

A large percentage of women in the Administrative, executive and managerial workers and the Forewomen and supervisors of manual workers groups were married, 30.0 and 24.8 percent respectively but the overall numbers involved were relatively small, just over 2 000 women altogether between the two groups.

The predominance of the older age group in agriculture is again immediately apparent here with 27 percent of males and 46 percent of females at work in Agriculture forestry and fishing aged 60 or over, an almost identical pattern to that evident in 1966. The overall percentages for males and females at work in all industries in this age group were 15 and 12 respectively. Other industrial groups with a relatively large percentage of males in the 60 years and over age group were Professional services (14.5 percent), Commerce (10.4 percent), Recreational services (12.1 percent) and Personal services (11.8 percent).

For females the industry groups in which over 10 percent of the total at work were aged 60 and over were — Recreational services (15.6 percent), Professional services (11.9 percent), Personal services (11.6 percent) and Commerce (10.6 percent).

The industry groups in which more than 10 percent of all males at work were under 20 years of age were Manufacturing industries (12.4 percent), Building and construction (10.2 percent), Commerce (13.7 percent), Personal services (16.2 percent) and the residual group Other industries or industry not stated (17.3 percent).

A much greater proportion of females at work were in the younger age groups and there were some groups in which more than 60 percent of the total were under 25 years of age. These were Manufacturing industries, Electricity, gas and water supply and Insurance, finance and business services.

Approximately one-third of all males out of work were aged 55 years and over. In the case of Agricultural and forestry workers and fishermen, just over 40 percent of males out of work were in this age group. Other groups with over one-third of males in this older age category were Leather and leather substitute workers, Building and construction workers and Foremen and supervisors of manual workers. Just under 30 percent of all males out of work were aged less than 30 years. Occupational groups in which 40 percent or more of all males out of work were in this age group were Electrical and electronic workers, Engineering and related trades workers, Textile and clothing workers, Clerical workers, Commerce, insurance and finance workers and Professional and technical workers.

In the case of females the younger age groups contained a much larger proportion of the total out of work, over 45 percent being aged under 25 years. However, this reflects the fact that the female labour force contains a significantly higher proportion of persons in the younger age groups. Groups in which over 60 percent of females out of work were under 25 years of age were Electrical and electronic workers and Leather and leather substitute workers. Less than 10 percent of all females out of work were aged 60 years or more.
