General Details

Introduction

A Census of Population was taken on the night of Sunday, 21 April 1991 in accordance with the Statistics (Census of Population) Order 1991 (S.I. No. 62 of 1991)¹. A copy of the census questionnaire including the explanatory notes which accompanied it is reproduced in Appendix 1.

This first volume of the detailed census report presents the population classified by sex for the different territorial divisions of the country – most of this information has already been published in a series of Local Population Reports (see Appendix 2). The areas are those in force at the date of the 1991 Census of Population and are defined in Appendices 3–8.

Subsequent census volumes will analyse the population by such characteristics as age, marital status, household composition, occupation, etc..

Coverage

The census figures relate to the de facto population – i.e. the population recorded for each area represents the total of all persons present within its boundaries on the night of Sunday, 21 April 1991, together with all persons who arrived in that area on the morning of Monday, 22 April 1991, not having been enumerated elsewhere. Persons on board ships in port are included with the population of adjacent areas. The figures, therefore, include visitors present on census night as well as those in residence, while usual residents temporarily absent from the area are excluded.

The date of the census was chosen to coincide with a period when passenger movements were at a minimum and, consequently, the figures closely approximate to those for the normally resident population. Members of the Defence Forces who on census night were serving abroad with the United Nations were excluded from the enumeration.

Conduct of the Census

The census enumeration was carried out by a specially recruited temporary field force consisting of 334 full-time supervisors and some 3,200 part-time enumerators. The census questionnaires were distributed during the three weeks immediately preceding the census night and the collection of the completed questionnaires commenced the following day. The enumerators examined the questionnaires at the time of collection to ensure that they were correctly completed; and, where necessary, they assisted householders in their completion.

Production of Results

Each enumerator first prepared and returned to the Central Statistics Office a summary of the population in his/her enumeration area. These summaries formed the basis for the preliminary 1991 population results issued in three census publications within months of the census date². The completed questionnaires for the individual households were subsequently transmitted to the Central Statistics Office for processing.

The population summaries, dwelling listings and enumeration maps for individual enumeration areas were checked for consistency in county order and used to determine the boundaries of census towns and suburbs/environs of towns with legal boundaries. The first stage clerical scrutiny and computer processing of the entries for date of birth, marital status and relationship to head of household (questions 1–6) on the census questionnaire proceeded concurrently in the same county order. These two operations combined allowed the publication of the first set of final census results in a series of Local Population Reports which were issued on a county-by-county basis immediately results became available (see Appendix 2). A summary report for the State was issued in April 1993.

These operations also form the basis of the first three volumes of the detailed census report. The computer processing of the remaining information on the census questionnaires continues during 1993 in county order and will provide the basis for subsequent volumes.

Small Area Population Statistics (SAPS)

Small area population statistics for Urban Districts, Rural Districts, Towns, District Electoral Divisions, etc. from the 1991 census are being made available on a commercial basis in two phases. The first phase information is already available containing detailed classifications of the population by age, sex and marital status and of households by size and by age, sex and marital status of the head of the household. Details of family units classified by size, age of youngest child, etc. are also provided. The second phase information will become available for individual counties as the corresponding second stage processing is completed.

Comparable 1991 and 1986 Populations for Areas

Throughout this publication every effort has been made to give comparable population figures for the 1986 census. Consequently, figures given in this publication will differ from those published for the 1986 census in the case of administrative districts and census towns where alterations in boundaries were made between 1986 and 1991.

Area Measurements

The measurement of area in hectares is shown where possible in Tables 12 and 13. The areas shown are exclusive of the areas of certain lakes, rivers and tideways. Since the boundaries of census towns and those defined for the suburbs and environs of legally defined towns have no statutory designation no area figures are available in these cases. It has also not been possible to provide the areas within certain legal boundaries altered since 1981.

Marriages, Births and Deaths

The statistics of marriages, births and deaths contained in Tables 1 and 5 of this publication are not collected as part of the census but are derived from the registration of these events recorded by the Office of the Registrar General. For the purpose of this publication, births have been classified according to the home address of the mother and deaths have been classified according to the home address of the deceased. Precise classification on this basis is not always possible, however, particularly distinctions between county boroughs and the remainder of the corresponding counties. Some caution should, therefore, be exercised in interpreting the figures contained in Table 5.

Commentary

Population of State and Provinces

The population enumerated on census night, 21 April 1991 was 3,525,719 persons compared with 3,540,643 in April 1986, a decrease of 14,924 persons or 0.4 per cent. This was the first decline in population observed at a census since 1961. The population of the provinces at each census since 1926 is summarised in Table A.

The population of Leinster increased by 8,300 persons or 0.4 per cent between 1986 and 1991. A decline in population was recorded for the provinces of Munster (–11,000 persons or 1.1%), Connacht (–8,400 persons or 1.9%) and the three counties of Ulster (–3,800 persons or 1.6%) over the same period.

Ratio of Females to Males

Between 1986 and 1991 the number of males in the State decreased by 16,272 while the number of females increased by 1,348. Table B shows the number of females per thousand males in the State and in the provinces for each census since 1926.

The number of males exceeded the number of females in each census from the foundation of the State up to and including 1981. This excess was at its greatest in 1936 but has subsequently declined. The ratio of females per 1,000 males was fairly stable at around 990 for the five censuses between 1961 and 1981. The 1986 census was the first since the foundation of the State to show an excess (albeit marginal) of females in the population. This excess has grown in the 1991 census.

The 1936 census was the only census between 1926 and 1991 in which the number of males exceeded the number of females in Leinster. By contrast there has been a persistent but declining male excess in the provinces of Munster, Connacht and Ulster (part) over the same period. The variation in provincial female/male ratios was at its greatest in 1961 when the Leinster ratio was 15 per cent higher than that for Connacht. This variation has since been narrowing and now stands at 7.7 per cent (Leinster compared with Ulster (part)).

Population of Counties and County Boroughs

Most counties experienced a decrease in population since 1986. Table C gives population figures for counties and county boroughs for 1986 and 1991 together with the actual and percentage changes for the same period.

In Leinster the population of Dublin County Borough fell by 24,400 between 1986 and 1991, continuing a trend begun in the 1970s. This contrasted with a population growth in Dublin–Belgard (+9,200), Dublin–Fingal (+14,300), Dun Laoghaire–Rathdown (+4,700) and in the following “dormitory counties” surrounding Dublin: Kildare (+6,400), Wicklow (+2,700) and Meath (+1,500). The population fell in all other counties in Leinster, apart from Kilkenny where there was a slight increase.

In Munster the population grew in Cork County, Limerick County and in Waterford County Borough but decreased in all other areas. The populations of Cork County Borough and of Limerick County Borough fell by 6,000 and 4,200 respectively.

In Connacht the only area to show an increase in population was Galway County Borough (+3,700). The other areas – most notably Leitrim, Roscommon and Mayo – all showed decreases. The population of these three counties combined fell by 4.5 per cent between 1986 and 1991.

The population of each of the three counties of Ulster (Cavan, Donegal and Monaghan) declined since 1986.

Population of Aggregate Town and Aggregate Rural Areas

Since the 1966 census a town size of 1,500 has been taken as the threshold in applying the classification "aggregate town" and "aggregate rural" as described in Appendix 3. In 1991 the aggregate town population, comprising 130 centres of population, was 2,010,700 or 57.0 per cent of the total. The population of these towns increased by 0.4 per cent between 1986 and 1991. In the same period the aggregate rural population decreased by 1.5 per cent.

The many changes in legally defined boundaries of towns, as well as the practice since the 1961 census of including the suburbs or environs in determining town size, make it impossible to give comparable population figures extending back over a long period of years for the areas defined at the 1991 census as aggregate town or aggregate rural. In Table D roughly comparable figures are given covering the period 1901 to 1936 for the area defined as aggregate town at the 1936 census. Comparable figures are shown for the 1936, 1946 and 1951 censuses by reference to the 1951 aggregate town areas. For each subsequent census, however, it is possible to give comparable figures only for the immediately preceding census, with the exception of the 1981 census where comparable figures are available for both 1971 and 1979.

Despite the lack of strictly comparable figures the pattern of increasing town and decreasing rural population over the period 1901 to 1971 is very clear. While the pattern of increasing town population has continued in the ensuing period up to 1991, the pattern of declining rural population was reversed and population increases of 136,000 and 42,000 actually occurred in the 1971–1981 and 1981–1986 periods respectively. However, there was a decline of 23,000 in the rural population during the 1986–1991 period.

In 1901 only 28.3 per cent of the total population was in aggregate town areas whereas by 1936 this proportion had risen to 35.5 per cent. At the 1991 census 57.0 per cent of the population was in aggregate town areas. The rate of increase in the aggregate town area population rose sharply between 1961 and 1981. From 1951 to 1956, the aggregate town area population rose by 13,000 and from 1956 to 1961 by 12,000. From 1961 to 1966, however, the increase was 112,000 persons and this was followed by a similar rise from 1966 to 1971. From 1971 to 1981 the aggregate town population rose by a further 330,000 persons. The rate of increase slowed considerably between 1981 and 1986, the increase of 55,000 being equivalent to an annual average of 11,000 or just one-third of the rate for the previous ten year period. The rate of increase has fallen off even further since 1986: an increase of only 9,000 occurred in the period 1986–1991.

In Table E the changes in the aggregate town and aggregate rural area populations are shown for counties for the 1986–1991 intercensal period based on the boundaries defined for the 1991 census. Increases in excess of 10 per cent in the aggregate town area population were recorded for Limerick and Dublin–Fingal while for Kildare and Galway County Borough the increases exceeded 5 per cent. The decline in the populations of Dublin, Cork and Limerick County Boroughs between 1986 and 1991 is also evident from Table E.

The population of the aggregate rural area of most counties declined between 1986 and 1991. The exceptions were Dublin–Fingal and Dun Laoghaire–Rathdown; the counties of Kildare, Meath and Wicklow bordering Dublin; and the counties of Carlow and Kilkenny.

Population by Type of District

Table F gives a classification of the population by "type of district" or community size. In addition to towns of 1,500 population or over comprising the aggregate town area population Table F covers all smaller towns down to a minimum size cluster of 50 inhabited houses. Suburban expansion in the Dublin area renders the allocation of suburbs as between Dublin County Borough and Dun Laoghaire Borough an arbitrary one and, therefore, these areas and their suburbs are combined in Table F under the heading "Greater Dublin Area".

In 1991 the population in towns of all sizes was 2,277,925 persons, representing 64.6 per cent of the total population of the country. The Greater Dublin Area contained 26.0 per cent of the total, while the 25 other towns of over 10,000 population accounted for 19.2 per cent. The 103 towns of between 1,500 and 10,000 inhabitants contained 11.8 per cent of the total population while the remaining 504 smaller towns contained 7.6 per cent. In all town areas the numbers of females exceeded those of males, the female excess being greatest in Galway County Borough and in the Greater Dublin Area. In country districts the number of males exceeded that of females very considerably, there being only 922 females per 1,000 males compared with 1,063 females per 1,000 males in town areas.

The population changes in the different types of districts between 1986 and 1991 are shown in Table G. The figures shown for 1986 and 1991 relate to identical areas, namely the towns, suburbs and environs defined in 1991. Because some towns fall into different size groups at the two censuses, somewhat different results are obtained depending on whether the type of district classification is based on the population in 1986 or in 1991. For this reason an average size classification (i.e. the simple averages of the populations of each town in the two census years) is used in Table G.

The last two columns of Table G compare the percentage changes in the various town-size ranges between 1986–1991 and 1981–1986. Although the percentages shown do not relate to identical sets of towns, because of the changes in average size classification of a number of towns, they are sufficient to show how the pattern of town growth has altered between the two periods. In the 1986–1991 period the rate of decline for country districts was four times that of the State as a whole while in the previous five year period the rate of growth for country districts was almost equivalent to the total rate. The population of all the county borough areas combined fell by 0.1 per cent between 1986 and 1991 while the population of all other towns combined increased by 0.7 per cent.

Population of Towns

Table 14 gives the population of each of the 194 towns with 1,000 or more inhabitants in 1991 in descending order of size with comparable 1986 population. Table H shows the percentage change in population between 1986 and 1991 of the larger towns. These percentages refer to the entire built-up area of the town in each case (i.e. legally defined area and any suburbs or environs). The largest percentage increases occurred in the following towns within commuting distance of Dublin: Celbridge, Maynooth, Ashbourne, Malahide, Swords, Greystones, Wicklow, Naas and Lucan. The greatest declines in population between 1986 and 1991 occurred in Tuam, Fermoy, Mountmellick, Athy, Ballinasloe, Monaghan and Thurles.

1986–1991 Intercensal Net Migration

The census total is a count of the number of persons actually in the State on census night. The change in population reflects the effect of vital events (births and deaths) and of all movement of persons into and out of the State between successive censuses. Since the number of births and deaths is known from the regular vital statistics, a residual measure of net movement of persons can be obtained. This residual is used as an estimate of net migration i.e. the difference between the inward and outward flows. It also reflects, however, the net effect of other factors such as the change between successive censuses in the level of visitors in the State, or in the level of Irish residents temporarily abroad on census night and marginal variations in census coverage. However, these are not considered to be significant.

In the five year period between the April 1986 and April 1991 censuses, births (277,000) exceeded deaths (158,000) by 119,000. The actual decrease in population in the same period was 15,000. The difference of 134,000 is the estimate of the extent to which outward migration in 1986–1991 was greater than inward migration i.e. an estimate of net migration.

Table I sets out the relevant figures for the intercensal period 1986–1991 with separate estimates for males and females.

The estimates of the mid-April population for the years 1987 to 1990 and the year-to-year changes in net migration have been revised on the basis of final 1991 census figures and a review of the trends exhibited by a range of population and migration indicators¹. The annual components of population change for each of the years 1986 to 1991 are given in Table J.

Table K shows the average annual change in the population, natural increase and estimated net migration for each intercensal period since 1926. The average annual natural increase rose fairly consistently up to 1981 and reached a level for the 1979–1981 period which was some 24,000 higher than for the 1926–1936 period. However, there have been sharp declines in the average annual natural increase in both 1981–1986 and 1986–1991, the figure (24,000) for the latter period being the lowest since the 1936–1946 intercensal period.

Since 1926 there has been an annual average excess of outward migration over inward migration for all intercensal periods with the exception of the 1971–1979 period. Since that period there has been a resumption of average annual net outward migration on a growing scale culminating in 1986–1991 in an average annual excess of outward migration over inward migration of some 27,000 persons. For the 1986–1991 intercensal period the average annual decline in population of 3,000 comprised a natural increase of 24,000 offset by net outward migration of 27,000.

The annual averages for population change, natural increase and net migration given in Table K are shown in the form of annual rates per thousand of the average population in Table L. The average population in this context is the simple average of the populations at the beginning and end of the intercensal period. Table K shows that the rate of net outward migration was at its highest level since 1956–1961 in the second half of the 1980's.

Table L Average annual rates of change in population, natural increase and estimated net migration per 1,000 of average population in each intercensal period, 1926–1991

Estimated net movement of persons can also be derived for counties and county boroughs in a similar fashion by comparing the change in population with the natural increase for each area. These estimates are given for the 1986–1991 intercensal period in Table 5. County estimates for net migration derived in this manner take into account all movements into and out of each county whether to or from abroad, or to or from another part of the State. The estimates of net migration represent the difference between two opposite flows – inwards and outwards.

Derived annual rates of net migration per thousand of the average population for each county are shown in Table M for each intercensal period since 1956.

Administrative and Census Areas

Introduction

There are many different territorial divisions of the country of which the most important, from the point of view of the Census of Population, are described below. All the areas are as defined at the date of the 1991 census and any subsequent revisions have not been taken into account. A number of changes in legally defined boundaries were made by Government Orders in the period since 1986. Details of these changes are contained in Appendix 4. Comparable figures for 1986 given in the tables relate to the 1991 boundaries.

Townlands

The enumeration of the census is carried out, in the first instance, by townlands in rural areas and by streets in urban areas. The townland is the smallest territorial division used for administrative purposes. Population figures in respect of townlands, of which there are about 51,000, have not been published since the census of 1911. Townlands are not used as administrative areas within the boundaries of legally defined urban areas – County Boroughs, Urban Districts and Towns under the Towns Improvement (Ireland) Act, 1854 – and for most other urban areas without legal boundaries it is not possible to compile townland population figures as building development has completely obliterated the physical features by which townland boundaries were originally defined on Ordnance Survey maps.

District Electoral Divisions (DED's)

The smallest administrative area for which population statistics are published is the District Electoral Division (or, in the County Boroughs, the Ward). In rural areas each District Electoral Division consists of an aggregation of entire townlands. There are 3,440 District Electoral Divisions and Wards in the State and their populations are given in Table 13 of this publication. These were published as soon as they were finalised in the series of Local Population Reports (Appendix 2).

Urban and Rural Districts

District Electoral Divisions are aggregated to give Urban Districts¹ (or Boroughs where appropriate) and (former) Rural Districts which, in turn, build up to counties. The Rural Districts, which numbered 160, were abolished as administrative areas in 1925 (in the case of Rural Districts in County Dublin, in 1930) but have been retained for census purposes as convenient units of area, intermediate in size between District Electoral Divisions and Counties. In the case of County Dublin, however, it is not possible to compile Rural District figures because of extensive revisions which have taken place in the boundaries of District Electoral Divisions over the years. Population figures for Urban and Rural Districts are given in Tables 12 and 13 of this volume. A map giving County and Rural District boundaries is shown on page 20, a second map illustrating the percentage change in population over the period 1986–1991 in each Rural District is given on page 21 and a third map showing the density of population per square kilometre based on Rural Districts is given on page 22.

Counties and County Boroughs

In the census reports the country is divided into 29 Counties and 5 County Boroughs. Outside Dublin there are 26 administrative counties (Tipperary North Riding and Tipperary South Riding each ranks as a separate county for administrative purposes) and 4 County Boroughs i.e. Cork, Limerick, Waterford and Galway. In Dublin, four areas are identified separately i.e. Dublin County Borough and the three Electoral Counties² of Dublin – Belgard, Dublin–Fingal and Dun Laoghaire–Rathdown.

The boundaries of the County Boroughs are subject to periodic extensions to keep pace with building development and it is not possible, therefore, to show comparable retrospective population figures over an extended period. Counties, on the other hand, have only been affected to a very minor extent by boundary changes and it is possible to compare county populations (including the appropriate County Boroughs) over a long period of time. This is done in Table 6 which shows county population figures for each census year from 1841 to 1991.

¹ A complete list of extensions to Urban District boundaries made by Government Orders is given in Appendix 6

² Under the Local Government Act, 1991, which came into force on 18 May 1991, the electoral counties of Dublin–Fingal and Dublin–Belgard were re-named the electoral counties of Fingal and South Dublin respectively

Dáil Constituencies

For the purpose of elections to Dáil Éireann the country is divided into Constituencies which, under Article 16.4 of the Constitution of Ireland, have to be revised at least once every twelve years with due regard to changes in the distribution of the population. The Constituencies were last revised in 1990 and the Schedule to the Electoral (Amendment) Act, 1990, contains details of their composition. The 1991 population figures for these areas is given in Table 16, a copy of which was already published in March 1993 in a Summary Release for the State.

County and Borough Electoral Areas

For the purpose of County Council elections each county is divided into Electoral Areas which are constituted on the basis of Orders made under the Local Government Act, 1941. These areas are, in general, formed by aggregating District Electoral Divisions; in a number of cases, however, District Electoral Divisions are divided between County Electoral Areas to facilitate electors. In the case of the County Boroughs the Corporation Elections are based on Borough Electoral Areas. Population figures for County and Borough Electoral Areas are given in Table 17. Details of changes which have been made in the various Electoral Areas between 1986 and 1991 are given in Appendix 4.

Civil Parishes

Originally an Ecclesiastical Division and later used for civil purposes, the Civil Parish has for many years been obsolete as an administrative unit of area and populations relating to Civil Parishes for the country as a whole have not been published since the 1911 census. Population figures for Civil Parishes may be provided on payment of a fee.

Towns

For census purposes towns fall into two types, namely those with and those without legally defined boundaries. The first type comprises:

- (1) five County Boroughs and the Borough of Dun Laoghaire;
- (2) five Municipal Boroughs;
- (3) forty-nine Urban Districts; and
- (4) thirty-two Towns under the Towns Improvement (Ireland) Act, 1854.

A list of all towns with legally defined boundaries is given in Appendix 5.

The second category is comprised of "census towns", whose boundaries are determined, for census purposes only, by the Central Statistics Office. They numbered 542 in 1991.

(i) Towns with Legally Defined Boundaries

In the case of towns with legally defined boundaries it is necessary, for administrative purposes, to compile population figures for the areas within these boundaries. However, many of these towns have expanded beyond their legally defined boundaries. As a result, large numbers of persons in the communities for which these towns are the nuclei would be excluded if the coverage were confined strictly to legally defined boundaries. This problem tends to become more pronounced from one census to the next as urban areas extend further into the surrounding countryside. Revisions of the legally defined boundaries tend to lag behind these developments as they are dependent on other factors besides the necessity of defining urban areas for Census of Population purposes.

Much of the census analysis is concerned with the overall size of population clusters and not simply with areas within legally defined boundaries. Consequently, where urban areas have extended beyond the legally defined town boundary, the Central Statistics Office draws up new boundaries defining the suburban areas of County Boroughs/Boroughs and environs of other legal towns for census purposes.

Suburbs/environs are defined, in conformity with United Nations recommendations, as the continuation of a distinct population cluster outside its legally defined boundary in which no occupied dwelling is more than 200 metres distant from the nearest occupied dwelling. New suburbs or environs are defined only where there are at least twenty occupied dwellings outside the legal boundary within the new limit. In applying the 200-metre criterion, industrial, commercial and recreational buildings and facilities are not regarded as breaking the continuity of a built-up area.

Suburban areas for Dublin County Borough, Cork County Borough and the Borough of Dun Laoghaire were defined for the first time at the 1951 census. For the 1956 census all towns with legally defined boundaries were examined in co-operation with the Local Authorities concerned and where necessary, suburban areas or environs were defined for them for census purposes. The suburban boundaries were reviewed for each subsequent census. A comprehensive review was carried out as part of the processing phase of the 1991 census.

(ii) Census Towns

As in censuses since 1971 a census town is defined as a cluster of fifty or more occupied dwellings, not having a legally defined boundary, in which within a distance of 800 metres there is a nucleus of either thirty occupied houses on both sides of the road or twenty occupied houses on one side of the road. A complete review was carried out of the boundaries of existing and potential census towns as part of the processing phase of the 1991 census. In this review the limits to existing census towns were extended where appropriate using the 200-metre criterion as described for suburban areas above. Fifteen new census towns were created for the 1991 census.

For the censuses of 1926 to 1951 a census town was defined simply as a cluster of twenty or more houses and the precise delimitation of the town was left to the discretion of the individual enumerator concerned. As part of the general review of towns for the 1956 census, the boundaries for the census towns were drawn up in consultation with the various Local Authorities applying uniform principles in all areas of the country. The definition of a census town was changed at the 1956 census, from twenty houses to twenty occupied houses; this definition was also applied at the 1961 and 1966 censuses.

The population of towns is given in Tables 11, 14, 15 and 20. Table 11 contains the total population of all towns and of their suburbs or environs where applicable, arranged in order of size within counties. An alphabetical list of all towns in the country, with their populations, is given in Table 20. In Tables 14 and 15 towns of 1,000 population and over are arranged in size groups based on total population. Total population in this context means the population of the towns, inclusive of suburbs or environs, if any.

The areas which in 1991 comprised the Greater Dublin Suburbs and the suburban areas of Cork, Limerick and Waterford County Boroughs are specified in Appendix 8. Galway County Borough had no suburbs at the time of the 1991 census.

Dublin Area

The description Greater Dublin Area was introduced for the 1981 census to denote Dublin County Borough, Dun Laoghaire Borough and their suburbs (i.e. Greater Dublin Suburbs). These suburbs include six population centres which had previously been separately distinguished as towns. This expression is retained in the present publication. Various tables contain information on the population of Dublin County Borough, Dun Laoghaire Borough and individual towns separately identified from Greater Dublin as well as for the Aggregate Urban and Aggregate Rural Areas of Dublin County and County Borough.

Suburbs of Cork County Borough

Because of continued suburban expansion around Cork County Borough, Leemount, which was separately identified as a census town at the 1986 census, has been subsumed into the suburbs of Cork County Borough.

Aggregate Town and Aggregate Rural Areas

In continuation of the definition used in reports of censuses since 1966, the population in the Aggregate Town Area, as shown in Tables 8, 9, 10, 14 and 15 of this volume and in the remaining volumes of the census report is defined as those persons living in population clusters of 1,500 or more inhabitants. If a town with a legally defined boundary has a suburban area or environs outside this boundary and if the total population made up of the population inside the legally defined boundary plus that in the suburbs or environs amounts to 1,500 persons or over, this town (including its suburbs or environs) is classified as belonging to the Aggregate Town Area. Similarly, a census town with 1,500 inhabitants or over is classified as belonging to the Aggregate Town Area. The population residing in all areas outside clusters of 1,500 or more inhabitants is classified as belonging to the Aggregate Rural Area. It should be particularly noted that the term "Aggregate Rural Area" is not connected with that of Rural District as described earlier. Whereas the Aggregate Rural Area is a statistical concept, the Rural District is a (former) administrative unit of area. From Table 15 it may be seen that the Aggregate Town Area population was 2,010,700 persons in 1991. Of this 1,279,377 resided within legally defined boundaries of towns while 731,323 resided in the suburbs or environs of these towns or in census towns. Table 15 also shows that there were 8 towns with legally defined boundaries which were not large enough, even with the population of their environs, to be included in the Aggregate Town Area and that the total population in towns of all sizes, down to the lower limit of fifty occupied houses was 2,277,925 persons. Table 12 shows the population in towns of all sizes in each Rural District.

Gaeltacht Areas

The Gaeltacht Areas Orders, 1956, 1967, 1974 and 1982 defined the Gaeltacht as comprising 5 Wards and 150 District Electoral Divisions or parts of Wards and District Electoral Divisions in the counties of Cork, Donegal, Galway, Kerry, Mayo, Meath and Waterford. The population of these Wards and District Electoral Divisions or parts of Wards and District Electoral Divisions in 1986 and 1991 is given in Table 18.

Islands off the Coast

The population in 1986 and 1991 of inhabited islands off the coast is shown in Table 19. In some cases the areas of land concerned may not, strictly speaking, be considered as islands since they are connected to the mainland by a causeway or bridge, or may be reached by land at low tide. However, they have been retained unchanged in the present publication in order to provide continuity with previous censuses.

Planning Regions

In Tables 9 and 10 the geographical sub-division used is Planning Regions.
