Question

You have been selected at random from the people in your household to complete this survey which explores how we all balance our work, our personal lives and our caring commitments.

The first questions in the survey are general questions about yourself.
If you are in employment, you will then be asked a series of questions about the flexibility you have in work, if you can take paid and unpaid leave, and what gets in the way of you taking leave.
The final set of questions relate to your well-being, your social relationships and the support you get from family, friends and neighbours.

We want to understand work-life balance for different people: men and women, parents and non-parents. The results will help the Government design policies and services to support everyone's well-being.

The Central Statistics Office is very grateful for your participation
